FRANTIC JOY OVER NEW YORKS RALLY IN SECOND GAME.

adelphia yesterday, doing some heavy batting in both. In the second game the visitors in both. In the second sale and pounded, landed on Mathewson early and pounded, out five runs, apparently a safe lead. The sig crowd was electrified when in their turn the New Yorks used their bats with effect in the fifth, and the scene when the score was the lead taken cannot well be imin the fifth, and the scene when the score was tied and the lead taken cannot well be imagined. It was one of the most tremendous demonstrations seen on a baseball field. Pittsburg, nothing loth, was not far behind the Champions on the day and beat Chicago twice. St. Louis turned and rended the Reds, trimming them twice in the Mound City. The heavens took compassion on the Brooklyns and the rain of tears made it impossible to play in Boston. The results:

the players frequently splashed and slid in pursuit of the ball. Under the circumstances the dash and steadhiess of the New Yorks in their first game was notable. While they did not field quite so smartly in the second game, however, was a joyous jamboree because of a couple of seething rallies by the Champs and because of the intense, soulful rooting that attended the rallies.

The scene in the second clash when the New Yorks were piling up five runs and wresting the lead away from the Quakers was as wild and tumultuous an outbreak of gladness as ever was seen on a ball field. The rampant rooting helped win the game, for not only did the Philadelphia pitchers become rattled, but others of the visiting team became shaky in the face of the vocal avalanche. The rooters jumped up and down, waved hats, umbrellas and newspapers and anything else way able and went through other actions which any where else than at a ball game would be a sure sign of dementia. The unbeatable nature of the New Yorks never was better demonstrated, and the Quakers were went aside in the torrent—on account of misplays, partly of their own creating—of hits and errors and yells.

People entering the grounds were informed that only one game would be played, but there was a clamor for another game after the first had been completed. There was no reason why another should be played, but there was a clamor for another game after the first had been completed. There was no reason why another should be played on a field that had its risks, but Secretary Enowles took the sporty end of the proposition and decided to give the crowd a second game. The second game did not end until half past 6. The last linning was played in the gloaming, and a number of bleacherites burned paper torches.

BOSTON ON THE DAY. Griffith Has to Use Many Twirlers for the Trick-Philadelphias Win Twice and Jump Away into the Lead, While Chicagos and Clevelands Slump. It was a happy Labor Day for Philadelphia in the American League, for the Quaker-ites beat the Stalwarts from Washington twice. This was enough to strengthen the lead of the Athletics considerably, but Detroit obliged by taking two from Chicago, the next in rank to Philadelphia, and Cleveland just split even with St. Louis. Therefore, there was a huge advance for the Philadel-phias, who now lead Chicago by thirty-four points instead of eighteen as before the holi-day. The New Yorks held their lead on the Bostons by splitting even, using five pitchers to do it. Chesbro, Hogg and Goode failed to stem the tide in the first game against Barry and Jesse Tannehill, but Powell and Newton did the trick in the second, which was called in the seventh by agreement. The score reverted to the sixth inning. The Bostons now are ten points behind, while the Clevelands are fifteen points to the good. The Young Hahn played splendidly in both games, using his club with effect, and considering the state of the weather the attendance was big.

Chesbro does not take kindly to a dark and damp day and was not at his best. He and Hogg and a new man, Goode, all took turns on the slab in the first game. Hogg was no improvement over Chesbro, but Goode made a good impression. The Bostons hits and errors saw two of them cross the Burkett's base on balls, Parent's single, a muffed throw by Orth, Freeman's hit and Elberfeld's wild toss netted four runs. The Bostons had enough to win by this time.

forty-ninth renewal of the of the Caledonian Club of New York was held yesterday in Washington Park, Maspeth. The rain kept down the attendance considerably, but the athletes turned out in force, drawn by the long list of events with money prizes. As is customary, there were money prizes. As is customary, there were several defections from the ranks of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Among these was Fred Engelhardt, formerly of the Mohawk A. C. and Sheepshead Bay A. C., well known as a broad jumper and general athlete. There was, however, nothing clandestine about the appearance of Hngelhardt as a "pro." His own name was on the program, and to a friend he said that he had previously written a letter was on the program, and to a friend he said that he had previously written a letter to the chairman of the registration committee of the A. A. U. announcing his intention of leaving the organization. The letter stated frankly that the athlete had reached a stage where, under the present handicapping system, he found it impossible to win any more prizes. Officials of the A. A. U. commented favorably on the honesty of Engelhardt. He won $38 as his share of the day's prizes.
